

Gardening Classes

Winter-Spring 2022

Small Garden Planning & Design

Winter is a great time to plan your garden. Learn the basics of crop planning and garden design for a small, three-season garden. With a good plan in place, small spaces can be quite productive. We cover basic considerations such as calculating planting dates, direct seeding vs. transplanting, intensive planting, succession planting, and garden layout/design considerations for function and creativity. With a little advance planning, you can harvest from your garden from April through October. Instructor: Sarah Mullin. This class is virtual. Meeting link will be sent to registered participants.

Wednesday, January 19 • 6-8 p.m.

$10/in-city, $12/non-city • Register by 1/18 • 165206-A
Allison-Jukebox Community Center, 351 S. Washington St.

Seed Starting for the Home Gardener

Starting your garden from seed is a way to bring the joy of gardening to the dark of winter. It helps you get a head start on the gardening season, allows you to grow unique varieties of plants, and is an affordable way to fill your garden. Without a greenhouse, a simple grow light setup will help you raise healthier, stronger plants and create less waste than growing in a windowsill. We will discuss materials needed to design a simple grow space for a small garden, and different budget-friendly methods of raising healthy seedlings. Instructor: Sarah Mullin This class is virtual. Meeting link will be sent to registered participants.
